THE RICHMOND

The Richmond is a small private hotel which offers bed and breakfast accommodation in central Oxford.

Our quiet location in Jericho is close to the bus and railway stations and a short walk from the city centre.

The hotel shares a building with our restaurant, Al-Shami, which has provided Lebanese food and hospitality in Oxford since 1988 and is one of the small number of Oxford restaurants listed in The Good Food Guide 2010.

OUR LOCATION

The Richmond is in the Jericho area of Oxford, close to the city centre and to the bus and train stations which provide very good connections to London, the major airports and the rest of the UK.

The main colleges, university administration and departments are all within comfortable walking distance.

Nearby Walton Street and Little Clarendon Street offer a range of cafés, bars and restaurants and interesting shops.

The Phoenix Picturehouse in Walton Street is an arthouse cinema with an interesting and varied programme.

The University Parks, Ashmolean Museum, Natural History Museum and Pitt Rivers Museum are a short walk away.

JERICHO

Jericho is Oxford's first suburb. In the seventeenth century, Oxford was still a walled city; people approaching from the north after the city gates were closed could find shelter in an inn known as The Jericho House. The inn was later rebuilt and is now The Jericho Tavern in Walton Street.

The area developed significantly in the nineteenth century as houses were needed for workers. The construction of the Oxford Canal and the building of the Jericho Iron and Brass Foundry and the home of Oxford University Press all played a part in further expansion.

Jericho has appeared in literature, from Thomas Hardy (Jude The Obscure) through Colin Dexter (Inspector Morse) to Philip Pullman (Northern Lights).

ACCOMMODATION

Our accommodation consists of:

- Standard Rooms (one double bed)
- Twin Room (two single beds)
- Large Rooms (one double bed and one single bed)
- Suite of two rooms with shared private bathroom (one room has a double bed and single bed; the other has a double bed; the rooms are separate and individually lockable)

Every room or suite of rooms has a private bathroom with shower and WC.

Rooms are equipped with television, refrigerator, kettle, wardrobe, small table and chair.

All our rooms are non-smoking.

INTERNET

We have a wireless Internet service which works reasonably well in most parts of the hotel. It can also be used from part of our restaurant, subject to our ability to offer tables for that purpose.

We do not charge guests for using our Internet service and it does not form part of our formal offer of accommodation. We cannot guarantee its availability at all times.

OUR RESTAURANT

The Richmond shares a building with our restaurant, Al-Shami, which has provided Lebanese food and hospitality in Oxford since 1988.

Al-Shami is one of the small number of Oxford restaurants listed in The Good Food Guide 2010. It has been listed by that guide for most of the twenty-two years of its existence.

Lebanon is where the Arab world meets the Mediterranean and its food has all the virtues of what is now described as The Mediterranean Diet.

Our food is naturally healthy. It uses the highest quality produce of sun, soil and sea: grains and pulses; vegetables which are grown for flavour rather than size; olive oil; cheese and yoghurt; herbs and spices. We eat fish and meat (mainly poultry and lamb) but they form a smaller part of our diet than has been common in the west.

Our restaurant is open from noon until midnight every day.
